

Acknowledging Our Own Election Errors

Now that Biden is officially president, it's time to move forward by looking at some of the errors made by our side.

I know the election was stolen and being able to properly explain it to non-believers will be the subject of a future column. But today we focus on self-reflection.

Vote by Mail Confusion:

This Was Our Number 1 Albatross. Trump pointed out the fraud possibilities with Vote by Mail and Trump supporters became paralyzed with confusion, while Democrats harvested ballots.

The Trump campaign would spend millions of dollars in mail outs asking Republicans to vote by mail, but some of our top Trump supporters would go on social media and say: "Do not vote by mail, the president does not want it." And they may attach an article from 6 months earlier when Trump talked about the perils of mail-in-voting.

Remember when they found 7 ballots in Pennsylvania from the military all had voted for Trump?

Problem is, every time that story appeared, the photo was a mail truck full of VBM ballots. Message: all these ballots were Trump voters that did not count, when it was only 7 ballots and they all counted.

New Data:

I am now in possession of good data that shows that Republicans who requested mail-in ballots or said they would vote by mail were 20% more likely to vote than those that said they would only vote in person.

20% means we might have won the popular vote if not for the VBM confusion.

The Stimulus Confusion:

Before the Georgia runoffs, the House and Senate overwhelmingly passed a spending bill and stimulus bill for the $600 check.

When the pork hit social media, our people howled about $millions to Pakistan for gender studies etc. So President Trump threatened to veto the bill unless it contains $2000 check per person. However he signs the bill, and pretended to line-item-veto-parts of it. (POTUS does not have line item veto authority).

The Democrats jumped on $2000 checks, while our side said $2000 is okay, if you get the wasted money back. But there was no way to get the wasted money back, as the bill was signed, and so the Democrats campaigned on $2000, and the Republicans got their heads chopped off.

Same Old Talking Points:

I Started GOP Made Simple because Republicans suck at messaging. I have written hundreds of columns over 3 years on simplifying the message and making it palatable for the other side

And yet the paid Republican consultants kept putting out advertising and messaging containing every mistake I have been warning against.

Commercials saying how Biden will raise taxes. I pointed out they have no effect, as W-2 employees have no idea how much they paid in taxes, only how much the refund is. I urged "higher paychecks and lower paychecks". It fell on deaf ears.

A vote for Biden is vote for socialism. Young people love socialism. It means everyone gets healthcare and nobody goes hungry. Who can be against this?

Our commercials should have said that the Biden plan will force American children to starve, and working people to go without healthcare because they cannot afford the deductibles and the premiums that Joe Biden mandated.

Number 1 Mistake:

The number 1 mistake Republicans made was not having alternatives to liberal control of social media.

That means in the early days of Facebook, Google, Twitter etc., Republicans should have been at the table either investing in these companies or starting their own.

Allowing the liberals to own and control media and social media is the only reason that Joe Biden is now President.
