

Dems Embolden The Anti-Vax Argument

I'm starting today with a media / political double-standard. The left cannot get politics out of healthcare

If a Trump rally proved to be the focal point for a big COVID spread, you can guarantee that the headline would read "Trump supporters spread COVID"

How would the headline read if the Trump haters spread COVID? NOTHING - no stories at all

The CDC is using a Massachusetts study about a spread around July 4 to back up the mask mandate. The media uses "Massachusetts" or "Barnstable County."

They avoid using the term Provincetown. Provincetown is a Gay Mecca near Cape Cod. Those infected were approximately 90% male. Again validating "Gay Mecca"

And Provincetown and gay will not appear in most media reports. So therefore, questions about women spreading the disease, sexual habits etc. do not get asked.

Again - just pointing out the double standard, as a reason why those opposing vaccines do not trust anything the media or the government says.

I wrote a response

on a liberal thread to the following:

" We are in a very serious crisis. The unvaccinated have been misinformed and refusing to vaccinate because they believe the vaccine is dangerous or a government plot to make money. Everyone needs to do their part on social media and post facts derived from scientific credible sources...."

MY REPLY:

I would like explain why everything that you are doing to convince the other side they are wrong, only emboldens them.

1) They don't trust social media because they censor facts and most people here support that censorship. If you want the unvaccinated to come on board, you have to pressure your politicians to stop social media censorship. Censoring is a tool of the dictator, even if it is legal.

2) You dismiss every argument out of hand. If they mentioned illegals, YOU DISMISS IT. How can you have a serious conversation when 1 million illegals comes over the border illegally, and a sizable percentage are positive for COVID?

Alan

Then they are put on planes and buses and sent around the country.

The absurdity is: a Mexican national who has a visa and Virus test cannot enter the U.S. via the Southern Border, but a RONA positive illegal can?

So agree that it is a problem, even if it is not causing a large percentage of the spread, or stop asking why they don't trust the government.

3) The latest science proves them right. Israel is the expert in the world on RONA and vaccines. Israel has announced that the ability of the vaccine to prevent the spread is waning. Pfizer went from 95% effective against preventing infection in January-April to just 39% in June-July. This is a fact. So those that delayed vaccination, are proven right.

So to tell them to take the shot to prevent the spread, so you don't get sick, is not quite accurate.

4) Get Fauci out of there. If Donald Trump were president and told you to take the vaccine, you would believe he is lying and probably would not take it. Well, Fauci telling Trump supporters to take the vaccine has the same effect.

You want compliance with vaccines? Get rid of the partisan hack that has got it wrong every step. Remember, March 2020? Fauci said: go on your cruise, live normally. this is no big deal.

5) Stop telling them they get all their news from Tucker Carlson. This is insulting and wrong. Most of the anti-vaxers can point to studies, errors in studies, retracted studies, medical professionals, and other factors that do not come from Tucker Carlson.

6) Many have lived a normal life since May 2020, especially in Florida and other Red states, where there was no lockdown. So therefore,

They were living normally with a disease that has a low death rate before the vaccine was distributed. What has changed?

7) Requiring masks for vaccinated shows that this is about control and not health.

Insulting someone to get them to do what you want them to do does not work. Hopefully this will change the way some people respond and help us solve the problem which is not a crisis.
