

Confusion on Yesterday's GOP Made Simple Newsletter

I must apologize, I did not make it clear that the posts that appeared in yesterday's newsletter were copied from various Social Media Groups.

It did not contain my thoughts. I am resending with some clarifications to clear up the confusion.

(Alan wrote) Due to the holiday I am going to slack off and copy in responses that were asked on a number of DeSantis groups.

The question was: “Is there a point where the Trump supporters lie about DeSantis and Florida..... that the DeSantis supporters would stay home if Trump is nominee?”

The responses are not scientific. They do not show any conclusive polling. There is confirmation bias.

But the reality is Trump is not starting with 74 million votes. He is really starting with 50% of the Republican base, and then has to fight for the rest. It does not mean that he will not do this, but do not assume 74 million. That is foolish.

I know the reply is “The Trump people will not vote for DeSantis.”

This may be true..... but in the state Trump won with 51.2% in 2020, there is little room to lose votes.

(Alan says) From this point on I am simply copying and pasting what can be found on social media. All of these are different people.

"...As a former Trump supporter, I never realized how one-dimensional my thinking had become.

And then one evening last November, Trump was hosting a rally in Latrobe, PA and uttered the insult “Ron DeSanctimonious” and a light switch went off. I immediately realized that if Trump will attack the most successful Republican governor in my lifetime, he’s not America First, he’s Trump First. We can do better. ..."

"...This is my exact story! The millisecond that I heard him call him DeSanctimonous, my eyes opened to what a fool I had been. ..."

"...I believe he lost many, many supporters that very minute! ...""...There are SO many of us with the same claim, and I hear the same from friends and family who voted for Trump as well, that’s why I can not buy into any polls right now, it just doesn’t make sense! ... unless, the polls are asking, do you support Trump, that’s different than asking, would you vote for him..."

"...I do not vote for Trump again. Voted for him in 2016 and 2020. Likely vote against if he is nominee. He is cancer ..."

"...I will never vote for Trump again, never a Dem, and never a Kennedy ..."

"...Have never not supported Republican local or federal but I would vote against Trump. ..."

"...I would have to vote for Trump, because he’s definitely better than Biden, but it wouldn’t matter because he’s not gonna win. ..."

"...It doesn’t even matter, because Trump can’t win. ..."

"...I don’t want to see him ever again. Tired of the bullying names calling. Have to go. Besides he will lose again. Later ..."

"...I understand what you are coming from but we won’t win the general election if Trump is our nominee that’s why we need DeSantis as our nominee but sadly Republican Party is broken wants a 80 year president in Trump as the candidate because they think he got screwed by the Democrats and it was rigged election it was kinda rigged ..."

"...I’ll never stay home, but could vote for someone other than Trump for president if Trump lies to trash another competitor the way Trump lied about Ted Cruz. ..."

"...I will not vote for Trump again. Principles Matter! ..."

"...Friends family & me will not vote for TRUMP OR VIVEK even if we lose. Don’t care this’s not the Republican Party anymore disgusting ..."

"...If Trump is the Candidate, I’m staying home for the first time. ..."

"...Trump forever lost our votes for his endless false witness vs DeSantis and his criticism of DeSantis heartbeat law ..."

Alan’s Meme of the Week:
College students don’t understand their student loan agreements, but 8-year-olds should be able to consent to gender reassignment surgery and powerful drugs.

AGAIN, I apologize for any confusion. I guess slacking off does not work for me.
