

The Iowa Polls Were Right. Is That a Problem?

The polls predicted Pres. Trump would set a record in Iowa and he did. As I stated many months ago, Trump's nomination is a foregone conclusion, unless Trump takes himself out.

The fact that the polls are accurate throws up some caution signs. The polls cannot accurately predict Trump's record win, and then be wrong that 51% of the public wants him off the ballots. 51% thinks he is guilty of many crimes. And even 50% of Nikki Haley supporters say that they will not support Trump in November over Biden.

Again, the polls are now proven accurate, which means you have to look at all the polls, not just the ones that make you happy.

Time for Ron DeSantis to call it quits. He dumped everything into Iowa and came in a distant 2nd. He has no path and should stop wasting time.

His campaign should be studied for what not to do when running for president. He did not attack Trump. He never told Floridians why he had no choice but to run for president, even though I wrote a speech and posted in my column. He signed a 6 week abortion bill and surrounded himself with morons.

The Supreme Court will eventually get Trump's immunity claim. Alan's rule is never predict what the Magnificent 9 will do, but here's a suggestion that solves many issues in the future.

The court does not need to answer the question of immunity. They simply rule that Congress conducted the impeachment trial which resulted in acquittal, therefore, the courts no longer have a say in the case. This will end the Trump case without ruling on immunity, and stop Congress from holding stupid impeachments at the end of the president's term.

In other words, had Congress not acted, then the courts could decide the question, but Congress took that away from the courts with their actions.

How times change? In Texas the father of a 16-year-old boy was arrested because he was aware his son he was having sex with his hot math teacher.

When I was a 16-year-old, every young boy was dreaming about having sex with a hot teacher.

But remember, this boy can decide that he is a girl, which makes the hot teacher a lesbian.

Here we go again, as predicted, Chip Roy says: "Get rid of the Speaker, " because of the budget deal. Let's lose another seat and cut our majority to ONE.

Now you know why very few Republicans are excited about working for Republican candidates?

Donald Trump should start every day reminding America that Hamas is still holding American hostages and Joe Biden is giving comfort and aid to Hamas.

But Trump will talk about his trials instead.

Even the Democrats have had enough. Public school kids not going to school so illegals can sleep in the school buildings. Meaning those parents can no longer go to work. They have to stay home with the kids because of the illegals.

I keep seeing Facebook posts about fair elections with voter ID

Let's understand one fact. In our crazy system, you have to win the election first, then pass laws to create fair elections.

800,000 Muslims dead in Yemen and Syria, yet they protest 20,000 in Gaza, where at least 10,000 are terrorists. The only reason to protest for Palestinians is because you are a Jew hating bigot, who wishes Adolf Hitler would have finished the job.

What is the goal of Hamas? Eliminate Israel, so they can freely go to the West to kill YOU for your nonbelieving ways.

It's that simple.

Remember the fastest way to end the war in Gaza? Release the hostages and .Hamas surrenders. War is over
