

Trump is Firing Everybody

Donald Trump fired Jose Andres, head of the World Central Kitchen.

They were allowing Hamas to use World Central Kitchen trucks and other equipment. This is another non-profit pretending to be helping people, when it is really home to a terrorist organization.

Four IDF female soldiers were released in the last hostage exchange.

Hamas has already indicated that 26 hostages are dead. It is a horrible way to get hostages back, but we have no choice at this point.

After the hostages have been returned, Israel will take appropriate action, with Trump's blessing.

Muhammad was the most popular name in New York City in 2024. Does that tell you something?

Last week Trump shut down all government DEI offices as of Wednesday. More winning.

Trump signed an executive order allowing for the deportation of students on student visas in the United States supporting Hamas and any other group which is against the benefit of the United States.

The people screaming about January 6th would have more credibility if Joe Biden didn't pardon everybody including murderers.

An argument can be made that Trump should have looked at each case individually, The lack of due process and the unconstitutional punishment made it much easier to just pardon everyone.

You're argument is with Biden not with Trump.

Keep your pants on. It makes no difference if Pete Hegseth got 53 votes or 50 votes and the Vice-President. He is still confirmed.

Many of you are screaming about McConnell. If the vote really counted I don't think Mitch would have voted against Pete, But they can afford to lose three, and that's what they did. Pick your battles. Most of you get hysterical at small things.

It looks like the Bishop that talked down to Trump and Vance, making a fool of herself is no longer working at the National Cathedral.

She received her 15 minutes of fame and now she's a nobody.

The question of birthright citizenship will be decided by the U.S. Supreme Court in about 2 years. I think the court may hand down a ruling that will surprise a lot of people because the fact is that being in the United States illegally does not make you subject to the laws of the United States.

At the very least the court will answer the question of, what is required for birthright citizenship. They could decide that it takes an act of the Congress. It could require a constitutional amendment, or an executive order could be enough. At least we will know what is required.

Governor DeSantis:
Undocumented means I left my driver's license home. Illegal means that I never had a driver's license.

It is a brilliant analogy..

I am going to reiterate the constitutional amendment. Upon ratification of this amendment the 60 Vote filibuster becomes part of the US Constitution. This amendment would be given one year to be ratified by the states. If the states do not ratify, then the Republican Senate votes to do away with the filibuster and change everything.

This is do or die for the Democrats, and I think they will let it go through.

By now you know that Colombia did not allow repatriation flights in the United States. Trump, while playing golf, immediately said they were pulling all visas, closing the embassy, 25% tariffs, et cetera.

Columbia quickly caved. This is the way to do it.

State attorney generals have advised Costco that they're looking at their practices and it's just a matter of time until Costco drops the DEI requirements. This is more winning.

People are asking if you deport all the immigrants who's going to mow our lawns and drive cars?

These jobs are about to go away. We have self driving cars, and self driving lawn mowers are not far behind.

Karoline Leavitt, the WH Press Secretary, gave a master class on how to handle the press. The incompetence of KJP, has been replaced with a good looking, intelligent, genius.
