

Can the DEMS Win Without Accusing GOP of RACISM?

If Israel disappeared tomorrow, would the Middle East suddenly become peaceful?

Public service announcement: A car is not an investment. It goes down in value. Rolling a car loan over with negative equity just makes you owe more.

I am seeing videos of people who make $2,000 a month paying $1,200 on a car note, plus insurance. When you buy a car on an eight-year note, just because you have no bills today doesn't mean you won't have bills in a year or two. Don't be stupid. Buy the car you can afford. Cash, if possible.

Which makes more sense: "Dad, I want you to co-sign my $45,000 car loan," or "Dad, can you loan me $3,000 so I can buy this $5,000 car to get around with?"

I was asked how to have the Republicans win the general election. The answer is easy: three commercials that get played everywhere, including TikTok. One: the economy under Joe Biden versus the economy under Donald Trump. Costs under Biden went up over 40%; under Trump, 5%. Do you want to go back? Number two: the Iran war. You have to make it real for people. They want to kill us, and with a nuclear bomb they can. Commercials of New York City being blown up, 4 million people dying, and millions being injured and maimed. You have to make it look like this is real, not theoretical. And then Trump's accomplishments. And then you will win.

In the 1930s, Play-Doh was a wall cleaner made to clean soot off wallpaper. Teachers discovered that children loved to use it for crafts, and the company reinvented itself into what it is today.

The reason, as I stated when it happened, that rents are so high is because during COVID, when the government decided that nobody had to pay their rent if they didn't want to, real estate went from being a safe investment to a speculative investment, and you're seeing the result of that. Landlords need double the return they had, because who knows what the next pandemic will bring and whether no one will have to pay rent again for three years.

Karoline Leavitt prepared for motherhood by spending the last two years answering millions of stupid questions.

The truth about the SAVE Act: If a person does not move, they don't have to do anything. Nothing changes. If they have a U.S. passport, they show the passport. Almost all immigrants have passports. If she's a married woman and her birth certificate is in her maiden name, she just has to prove she was married, which she would have had to do anyway when she changed her name on her driver's license or anything else. So, like everything else, "disfranchising women" is a total crock.

The most hated commercial on television was Mr. Whipple's "Don't Squeeze the Charmin." This commercial also made Charmin the number-one-selling toilet paper in America. People do not have to like something for it to be effective.

Again, from the Land of Israel: a blood test that diagnoses lung cancer with 90% accuracy for $60. Amazing.

Yonatan Netanyahu, the brother of the Prime Minister, was killed 50 years ago at the Raid on Entebbe in Uganda. Today Uganda stands with Israel and has pledged troops to Gaza. As my grandmother used to say: If you live long enough, you will see everything.

A Friday night attack in a New York City synagogue. And the Jews there continue to vote Democrat.

I keep thinking that if a guy had not overheard Ray Kroc talk about McDonald's, he would have never said: "You're in the wrong business. You are not in the hamburger business. You are in the real estate business." Those words changed everything. Had they not been spoken, McDonald's would have been a has-been that never was.

I expect Ashley Moody to have a great night. She is actually a better vote-getter than either Ron DeSantis or Rick Scott was, when she was running for Attorney General. So we will see.

When Islamist militant groups start a war, they fight hard and call it jihad. But when they start losing, they call it genocide.

I was proud to be there when Ron DeSantis announced he was running for governor. And I was equally proud to be there last night when Byron Donalds accepted the Republican nomination for governor.

When Senate candidate Angie Nixon gave her victory speech, she said, "Look what a person of color can accomplish." Byron Donalds—not a word about color.

It's going to be hard for David Jolly to campaign because he cannot call Byron Donalds a racist or a white supremacist. And that is step one of the Democrat playbook.

In the next few weeks, we will be sending out the newsletter from OneMinuteIssue.com. Check your spam folder, and if you don't get it, let us know.

In Florida, the Clerk of Courts of Palm Beach County was arrested and charged with sex crimes involving an underage minor. Everyone is presumed innocent. But when you're taking down a public figure that the governor appointed? I guarantee they have a buttoned-down case. We shall see.

And again in Florida, 85% of the vote was counted in just 44 minutes.

There are 20 million single Black women and 100 million single White women in America. There are 4.6 million single Black mothers and 6.2 million single White mothers. Do we understand the disparity?

Next week we will send out two newsletters: one from this email address and one from OneMinuteIssue.com. If you do not receive the One-Minute Issue one, please contact us immediately. We will do this for two weeks before moving everything over.

A man asks his doctor for help with a four-hour erection. The doctor holds up a picture of Rosie O'Donnell: "No prescription necessary."

Meme of the Week:
My wife asked me what I was thinking. After all these years, I still haven't found a safe answer.

Bonus Meme of the Week:
My son said, "Dad, you don't understand my generation." I said, "Your generation can't understand why the TV used to have only three channels."
